

Down Syndrome Advisory Network

Down Syndrome Australia is looking for people with Down syndrome to become members of its advisory network.

The Down Syndrome Advisory Network is a group of people who will help Down Syndrome Australia understand what is important to people with Down syndrome.

Each Advisory Network member will get individual support to take part. This includes all information in Plain English and Easy Read, and a local support person to mentor each member.

Are you interested in becoming a member?

Are you aged 18 and over?

Are you interested in having a say on things that are important to people with Down syndrome?

Do you want to help other people with Down syndrome?

Do you want to meet new people, learn about being on a committee, take part in meetings, and learn leadership skills?

Contact our DSAN Coordinator if you have any questions or want to apply to be a member:
